GERMAN RETALIATION

Fifteen British Civilians Killed Following Attack of French Aeroplanes on Unfortified German City.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

London, June 16.—A Zeppelin airship visited the northeast coast of England last evening and dropped bombs. Fifteen deaths are reported in the district in question, and fifteen persons were wounded.

Some were started by the projectiles of the Zeppelins, but the others, including they had been overcome, this information is contained in an official announcement made public in London today.

Air Attacks Exchanged.

Beginning with the German raid on the municipal area of London May 31, in which four persons were killed, the last sixteen days have brought out reports of a number of aerial attacks by both sides, of which indicate a determination to force the attack.

An air attack by the birdmen of one side has been followed so closely by a counter attack from the other, although on different localities, that retaliation is strongly indicated.

For instance yesterday twenty-three aeroplanes delivered an attack upon the German city of Karlsruhe, killing nineteen persons and wounding fourteen and inflicting material damage.

The raid of night followed the forenoon's display, followed this on Sunday within twenty-four hours.

The most important aerial engagements of the past two weeks over the continent and England are as follows:

Summary of Raids.

Aeroplanes of the allies attacked headquarters of the German Crown Prince June 3, and two days later a German aeroplane dropped explosive bombs on the French seaport of Kaiserslautern. On the 6th of June a Zeppelin visited the east coast of England and killed five persons on the ground below before sailing away. It was on the seventh of June that Warneford, the young Canadian aviator, destroyed a German Zeppelin in an air duel over Belgium. From his aeroplane he wrecked the dirigible and caused the death of his crew.

On June 8th Ghent was badly damaged by a British raider, and the following day Venice was bombed by an Austrian aeroplane.

On the 12th June Austrian aviators bombed towns on the Italian frontier, and two days later British aviators attacked the German dirigible sheds at Evers.

Nineteen at Karlsruhe.

Karlsruhe, Baden, via wireless, to London, June 16.—Nineteen persons were killed and fourteen seriously injured, while many others were slightly wounded during an attack upon this city early yesterday by a British aeroplane. The people remained calm, but were incensed because of the attack upon an open town.

A French statement yesterday says the attack upon Karlsruhe made by aeroplanes which dropped 130 projectiles, causing a large number of fires.

Two Aviators Lose Lives.

Geneva, June 16.—Travelers who arrived here today from Karlsruhe say the number of persons killed during the aerial attack on their city yesterday as twelve, in addition to which many persons were injured. Two French aviators were killed and the other two occupants of the two aeroplanes brought down were made prisoners.

Termed Nefarious Act.

Berlin, via London, June 16.—Commenting on the aeroplane attack upon Karlsruhe, Carl Becker, assistant chief editor of the Tages Zeitung, terms it "nefarious and senseless act, for which unscrupulous retaliation is demanded."

He declares Germany hitherto has retaliated for the bombardment of defenseless unfortified cities only by the bombardment of military localities, but an example now should be made.

Carl Becker suggested the best step would be the bombardment of western ports of England. He thinks the retaliatory measures should be extended also to other departments of warfare.

Count Von Reventlow, naval expert of the same paper, returned this morning to the attack upon the article of Europaische Rundschau, general director of the Local Anzeiger, in favor of the efforts toward a German-American understanding.

Scores German Press.

In an article headed "German Propaganda for War of Weapons to Germany's Enemies," Count Von Reventlow says the defense by the German newspapers of these weapon deliveries is one of the most inexcusable things which have occurred during the war. He attacks Vorwärts for its approval of the Local Anzeiger's proposal, and again assails the latter paper for declaring there was no occasion for indignation at the attempt of England to starve out Germany, which was held to be legitimate.The count says the press opposed to Germany will refuse to learn that its own views are held and furthered by a portion of the German press. He argues that if the Local Anzeiger approves England's starvation plan, it therefore disapproves the submarine campaign.FRENCH WAR VESSEL

PUT IT UP TO VOTERS

But Senate Kills Scott Measure for Giving Suffrage to Women Outright—Poole Bill Reconsidered.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, June 16.—The state senate's known attitude on woman suffrage was revealed today when by a vote of 16 to 13 the Glenn bill for a popular vote on the question in 1916 was referred engrossed.

Efforts to change this line-up made by the anti-suffrage forces before the bill comes up for final passage. When this bill had been advanced the senate killed the Scott bill granting suffrage to women outright, by a vote of 24 to 7, and the Tompkins bill extending suffrage to women in county elections, 25 to 6.

Beginning next Tuesday, if the assembly concurs, the senate will hold daily sessions, Sunday and holidays excepted.

The senate reconsidered the vote by which it killed the Poole bill prohibiting cities from enacting tuberculosis ordinances and sent it back to the committee with an amendment by Senator Bickler, which gives a city right to inspect herds from which the milk supply is drawn and to order the testing of suspected cattle.

The Bickler bill exempting rental value of residence property occupied by the owners from income taxation, was killed.

The senate killed the Martin bill for popular vote on issuing of county bonds.

The senate recessed until tonight when the Stenner liquor license bill will come up.

The assembly spent the morning on the Ackley water-power bill with no decisive vote at 12:30.

By a vote of 43 to 30 it refused to reconsider the vote by which it adopted the Nordman amendment respecting the principle of the Husting law.

Assemblyman Nelson offered an amendment practically nullifying the Nordman amendment and this was defeated, 52 to 41. Carl Hanson then moved, 52 to 41, that the bill be referred to the committee on the question in 1916 and this motion was under discussion until well along in the afternoon.

"ULTRAS" DEFEATED
IN EVERY SKIRMISHNot a Single Administration Measure
Has Been Killed in Legislature Thus Far.

SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.

Madison, Wis., June 16.—Thus far not a single administration measure has been killed.

This statement will no doubt bring a shock of surprise to many persons in the state and there are some persons who will not be a little charmed to find that it is true. The inapprehension or misunderstanding regarding administration bills is the result of what appears to be a deliberate plan to discredit the Philip administration by members of the ultra-progressive press of the state.

This statement is often in this particular section of the press. This has been beaten again. The "ultra" press is taking a particular delight in heralding his "defeat."

As a matter of undisputed fact the administration hasn't been whipped in any battle.

An excellent example of how the "ultra" press is found in connection with the so-called water power bill.

This bill was amended last week in the assembly in such a way that its usefulness is impaired and there are now two bills.

The bill is the amendment to the constitutional. The intention of the Husting "political plow rice" and the fact that the Milwaukee members of the assembly are sore at the action of the senate committee in not reporting out for passage the Stenner bill are the two factors that brought about the adoption of the amendment.

It is interesting to note that when this action was taken it was immediately hailed as an administration defeat, as a matter of fact, while Governor Phillips has had much to do with this measure, believing in the Husting law prevents the development of water powers, nevertheless the proposed bill is not and never was an administration measure.

Gov. Philipp was elected on a platform of lower taxes, business administration and fewer commissions.

Therefore only the bills which have these three points in view are in reality administration measures.

ALLEGED THE GERMANS
POISONED WATER SUPPLY
IN SOUTH AFRICAN LINES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Cape Town, June 16.—The alleged method of the Germans in poisoning the water supply when forced to retreat in South Africa are thus described in a dispatch from a British officer at Aus, German Southwest Africa:

"All the wells and boreholes at Aus had been damaged and the water spoiled by putting large quantities of lime into the wells. In one well, put the crocodile in a time which made a small hole in the top through which a piece of cord passed.

The well was wired to the bottom of the well, and this of course ensured a continual pollution for a good while if the tin was not removed.

"As I understand, some of the wells were soon emptied and the tins discovered, so we soon had sweet water to drink, but for three or four days all our drinks, tea, coffee and even milk, were avored with a strong carbolic bouquet. We had to put up with it, though it was far from pleasant."

"The same writer describes the danger from land mines left behind by the retreating Germans: "Plateaus and mountain side were soon found to be sprinkled with contact mines, very cleverly buried or concealed by rocks and gravel. Generally we drove mules or cattle over the suspected ground ahead of us. Only two of the mines did any particular damage on exploding. They killed four horses and one horse, and wounded one officer. Ninety-five of the mines have been dug up by the engineers, but villagers say that the Germans planted over 400, so there are possibly many more in the right skirt circumstantly like cats and take care to avoid places suitable for mines."

Promptly at four-thirty this afternoon the graded school orchestra struck up the procession march that started the fifth annual May Fete and Pageant, given by high school students before the public of Janesville in the Court House Park. The program given this afternoon was somewhat varied from the usual course of procedure, the senior class taking charge of the production of Robin Hood, and being assisted by the girls from the three lower classes.

The Bickler bill exempting rental value of residence property occupied by the owners from income taxation, was killed.

The senate killed the Martin bill for popular vote on issuing of county bonds.

The senate recessed until tonight when the Stenner liquor license bill will come up.

STUDENT MUSICIANS SCORE BIG TRIUMPH

SENIOR CLASS PLEASES SEVEN HUNDRED PEOPLE AT DELIGHTFUL CONCERT LAST NIGHT.

ENCORE MRS. WEAVER

Milwaukee Contralto Wins Instant Favor—Stanley Horwood Has Powerful Voice—Beautiful Stage Setting.

Before one of the largest audiences that ever packed the high school auditorium, estimated at seven hundred persons, the 1915 graduating class, assisted by Iva Bigelow Weaver, contralto of note, from Milwaukee, presented their opening commencement exercises last evening, a delightful musical concert. The seniors, who had been carefully directed by Miss Emily Sewell of this city, did credit to themselves, and their efforts met with the enthusiastic approval of the audience, as shown by the hearty applause. Miss Sewell deserved special credit and praise, since the success of the concert was due largely to her zeal and enthusiasm.

Following the address of welcome, given by George Albert Kalvelage, president of the outgoing class, in which he thanked the citizens of Milwaukee for their earnest support, which made responsible an institution of such excellence as the local high school, the curtain was raised to allow the seniors to arrange themselves on the stage for the opening chorus. As the curtain went up, every senior, seventy-seven in number, all attired in their caps and gowns, rendered "Merry June" to the entire satisfaction of the listeners.

A quartet, composed of Sheldon, Dearborn, Roberts and Horwood, all seniors, opened next with a selection, "Marching on," this same quartet sang again during the concert, rendering "Dawn Ye Cry My Honey." Both selections were enjoyed.

The playing of Miss Ruth Soulman, in her selection of "Springtime," and "In the Gondola," on the violin, assisted by Miss Mae Hayes at the piano, was easily one of the most pleasing numbers given. Miss Soulman displayed qualities of a talented artist with a mastery of technique and expression that won instant approval.

The senior boys, all dressed in Mexican costume, appeared next in a chorus number, "The Gondoliers to Juanita." Several of the young men carried mandolins and wore large Mexican hats. Their costumes and the stage decorations of boughs and green leaves made a pretty tableau.

The selection, "Song at Sunrise," was greatly appreciated and was sung by a double trio, composed of the Misses Lewis, Field, Roberts, Soubiran, Nobisovsky and Nuzum. Miss Nuzum's voice in the solo part was the solo of Stanley Horwood received an additional applause. His first selection was in German, "Der Himmel Hat Eine Throne Geweint," and Mr. Horwood here displayed the quality of his voice to a marked degree. The "Bandoliers" given next, required exceptional technique, all of which Mr. Horwood possessed. His voice is a rich bass, one in which lower tones fail to baffle him. He was accompanied by Miss Adele Lewis at the piano, with Miss Soulman at the violin during the rendition of the German selection.

A mixed double quartet rendered "Lullaby" with deep expression. Irene Lewis carried the solo measures very capably. Floyd Roberts, Harry Fletcher, Allen Dearborn, George Kalvelage and the Misses Lewis, Nobisovsky, Fletcher and Roberts made up the group of voices.

The high school orchestra closed the first part of the program with two numbers, "Venetian Love Song" and "Good Night." Miss Soulman, in charge of the orchestra, proved an excellent director and the music given proved a real treat to the audience. The second part opened with the favorite number, "Little Pajoose" on the Wind String Band, and was rendered by the senior girls, all dressed in Indian costume with a wigwam placed in the center of the stage. A glowing fire under a tent in front of the Indian tent, was all so beautifully decorated, the appearance of the forty-three girls greatly resembled the scenes of pioneer days.

Iva Bigelow Weaver appeared next with four favorite and pleasing numbers, "Song My Mother Taught Me" was most pleasing, as it gave the artist plenty of opportunity to reveal the power of her voice. The high tones were beautiful and clear. Her rendition of "Tis Snowing," "Prayer (Opera La Tosca)" and "Ecstasy" were no less heartily received by the audience. She was forced to encore, after due applause was accorded her. Mrs. T. Sherer accompanied her at the piano.

A number that required the deepest expression was next given by twenty senior boys and girls, "Daybreak," which was the number, was selection replete with musical perfection, and the seniors did themselves credit in it.

A girls' chorus, composed of nine senior girls, rendered "The Sweet of the Year." Those taking part were the Misses Knuth, Hutchinson, Robins, Fletcher, and Gardner. Miss Sewell played at the piano. For the Boys, Fletcher and Gaarder, Miss Pearl Gaarder was the pianist. The closing number was rendered by the entire class, assisted by Mrs. Weaver, and closed a most interesting and successful concert.

The program of the evening opened with the presentation of the D. A. R. history prizes to the three respective winners, Leo Dugan of the Garfield school, Elton Jenkins of the Adams school and Harold Buell of the Garfield school. They were awarded first, second and third places respectively, the first prize being a medal, while books constituted the second and third.

Leo Dugan, it must be mentioned, worked faithfully preparing and writing his examination paper, and was given 98 out of a possible 100 points for a mark. He wrote in the best of language, and English, and penmanship was a credit to him self. Scarcely has so perfect a paper been turned in by an eighth grade contestant in past years. Leo Dugan is the son of Patrick Dugan of Linn street. Mr. Buell gave the presentation address.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the First Congregational church will meet in the church parlors Thursday afternoon at three o'clock. The following program will be given.

Society Agencies—Mrs. H. A. Jeffreys.

Current Events—Collection.

The Woman's Board—Miss S. Jeffreys.

Methods and Results—Miss Ella De Baum.

Picnic supper.

Supper committee—Miss Peterson.

Miss Clemons. All the women of the congregation are cordially invited.

WOUNDED TOMMIES WILL BE TREATED BY LOCAL SURGEON

Dr. E. F. Woods of This City to Sail for England Next Week to Enter War Hospital.

Dr. E. F. Woods of this city will depart from Janesville during the latter part of next week for England to spend the coming three or four months as a surgeon in the war hospitals of England and France.

At New York City Dr. Woods will meet a company of American physicians and surgeons who will make the trip and be engaged in a similar work in Europe. They will sail for England a week from Saturday on the American steamer New York.

Dr. Woods will not enter the Red Cross service of any country. Restrictions which make it necessary that a surgeon spend at least six months in the service before being admitted to field work make it impossible for the doctor to enter the Red Cross as he does not contemplate staying abroad more than three or four months.

Dr. Woods was in Europe during the early part of hostilities, having gone to London to attend an international congress of surgeons. With Dr. T. W. Nuzum of this city he had crossed to the continent and it was while there the war clouds lowered, making the exodus one of great difficulty. Both escaped, however, and arrived home with thrilling and vivid tales, and inside information which was published in the Gazette weeks before the correspondents of press associations and great newspapers discovered the stories.

Dr. Woods has made numerous trips abroad, especially to England. In British surgical circles he enjoys a wide acquaintance. Following some time spent in the hospitals on the island it is planned that he will cross to France to work in the French surgical department.

"NATIONS AT WAR" YOURS TO-DAY

Big Presentation to This Paper's Readers of Thrilling Volume

By Noted Author.

Today marks the opening of the Gazette's grand distribution of the leading account, in book form, of the great events of the war, a volume which covers every detail of the great European conflagration as it will be set down on the pages of authoritative historians.

It is divorced entirely from partisanship and deals only with the cold,无情 causes of the struggle in the seething cauldron of war-mad Europe.

The Nations at War is replete with actual photographs of the monarchs and their advisers, cities invaded, great battles with their strategies, comedies and tragedies, maps and charts marking the localities, monuments of past notorious armies, and side lights and local colors of the civilian non-combatants, as well as a hundred and one other details of interest and importance. These pictures are a realistic story in themselves, recording as they do, each event in regular order.

A interesting map gives a comprehensive idea of the racial distribution in the Austria-Hungarian monarchy, the sections occupied by the Germans, Austrians, Hungarians, Magyars and other subjects of this empire, and also maps showing the Teutonic dreams of a pan-German Empire as well as the Russians' aspiration to domain.

Splendid pictures of the Zeppelins, aeroplanes, submarines, siege guns, armored vehicles representing the highest achievement of scientific progress in the art of military destruction, as shown in this wonderful book represent the art and often times the risk of life by the artists who procured them, and they will be accounted accurate and priceless by all who secure the book.

The text by Willis J. Abbot, today recognized as one of the highest authorities and an author of renown, is handled in a masterly manner, as evidenced by his famous books, "Panama" and the "Sudan." The Story of Our Army," "The Story of Our Navy," and other valuable works which occupy the shelves of our more most scholars. The story is a narration of facts with never a variation from the straight line of veracity and neutrality.

The Gazette urges its readers to take advantage of the presentation offer which is open today. Present at the Gazette office only 98 cents accompanied with three War Book Companions and you will be presented with a beautiful $3 volume which contains the whole history of the European War.

Make Inquiry: City Clerk J. P. Hammarlund this morning received an inquiry from the University Municipal Reference Bureau with regards to the liquor license required in Janesville by fraternal and city clubs, where intoxicating liquor is sold. The letter stated that a license of five hundred dollars was charged such clubs in Madison and the bureau was obtaining information of the regulations of club licenses in other Wisconsin cities.

MR. AND MRS. IVAN BARR CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Barr of 409 North Washington street celebrated their wooden wedding last evening at their home. There were about ten guests present and music and dancing held sway as the feature amusement held.

They were reported to have enjoyed the evening very much.

In All The World No Trip Like This

It's almost a man's duty as an educational process, to take his family, while the railroad fares to California have been cut in two and visit the great Expositions at San Francisco and San Diego; seeing on the way out the massive Mountain Scenery of Colorado—Denver, Colorado Springs, Pikes Peak, Pueblo, the stupendous and famous Royal Gorge, and Salt Lake City. Then you should return by way of the North Pacific Coast and other Glacier or Yellowstone National Park. You will never have the same opportunity and if you use the through Pullman service of the Burlington Route (C. B. & Q. R. R.) or join one of those comfortable, economical and care-free specially conducted excursions, you can see the beauty of Colorado without extra cost, for you will pass all those most interesting points by daylight. Don't forget that.

Here's the ideal. Sit right down and write me how many expect to make the trip, just when you want to go, the points you want to visit, how long you expect to stay, and I will plan a trip especially fitted to your time and needs—then you will know all about it. If you decide to go, I will make arrangements for your complete trip, and reserve sleeping berths, when the times comes for you to start. Write today before you forget it.

POSTPONE CHICAGO AUTO DERBY TO 26; STRIKE THE CAUSE

Speedway Race Will Not Be Run on the Coming Saturday Because of Tie-Up in Street

IMPERIAL TO THE GAZETTE

Chicago, Ill., June 16.—Officials of the Chicago Automobile club Tuesday night announced the postponement of the first 500 mile Chicago derby on the new board track at Maywood, from Saturday, June 19, to Saturday, June 26, on account of the street car strike.

Fifteen cars qualified at the elimination heats on Tuesday. Dario Resta, the Italian driver, averaged 101 miles an hour for a lap, setting a new world's record for cars of 300 cubic inches piston displacement. The trials were officially sanctioned and timed.

Are You a Business Man?

If you are, then you are a present or potential advertiser.

Therefore, the sessions of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World at Chicago, June 20 to 24, will be of vital interest to you.

It is not necessary that you should be an advertiser now. It is only necessary that you should be making and selling something.

The Associated Advertising Clubs Convention is the biggest business movement in the world. Can you afford to be out of it? Write for full information.

averaged better than 90 miles an hour, although the rules provide that 85 miles an hour is speed enough to permit a start. Those who qualified were: Cooper, Wilcox, Anderson, Johnson, Rickenbacher, Orr, Grant, Limberg, Davore, Keene, O'Donnell, Altey, Haupt, Resta, and Burman.

The elimination trials will continue on Wednesday.

Five hundred miles at an average speed of 100 miles an hour is the amazing prediction of the racing pilots, who have tried the huge plant oval. Earl Cooper of the Stutz team, who has made the fastest time thus far on the track, declares it is a wonder, and that the 100 mile average—which would leave all existing speedway records in the shade—is at most a certainty.

Tuesday Cooper did a two-mile lap at a speed of 109.05 miles an hour, by far the fastest speedway time ever set in America and within less than six seconds of the world's speedway record made at the famous bowl at Brooklands, England. And the trial was made without any formalities or special preparation of any kind.

Moreover, Cooper's time was made with an engine of less than 300 cubic inches piston displacement, while the other world's records have been made with huge racing cars especially built for enormous speed. After two days' acquaintance with the Chicago speedway, Cooper declared confidently that he had the engine he could make 140 miles an hour—a speed hitherto unheard of.

Interest in the phenomenal success of the new track, which has been erected in record time since the first of May, has been shown in the thousands of spectators who have been at the park daily to witness the practice laps and elimination trials. The construction of the speedway is unique, the surface being composed of two-by-fours laid on edge and resting on a complicated system of timber supports and concrete foundations.

The racing drivers declared it to be the safest track ever built. The sharp, full speed, without shifting of the engines and the sensation on the curves, according to the pilots, is virtually the same as on the straightaway.

"It will be the greatest 500-mile race ever run," said Starter Fred J. Wagner, who began superintending operations at the track on Saturday. There is nothing like this track anywhere. If such performance as Cooper's can be made with an engine of less than 300 cubic inches displacement, it staggers the imagination to think what could be done with more powerful cars.

COBB SETS PENNANT BEE AMONG TIGERS

Some credit is due Morris for what he started.

College baseball for this spring is near its end—and the scouts who have been watching the college boys play report one of the best crops of dormitory ball players ever turned out. There are at least a dozen youths playing for the schools who are major league material. No perhaps not more than two or three will be taken on, even if they want to play, because of the economy being practiced by all the big leagues. The two best men in the west are Paul Des Jardins of the University of Chicago, and Juel, pitcher for Northwestern.

No wonder a lot of us can't play good golf! Walter Travis, in his recent match for the title against Johnny Anderson, had two putts of less than two feet. He looked up on both, a record for him, and missed both. Yet a lot of us look up on putts of eight feet, mashie shots of 140 yards, or full drives, and wonder what the ballyhoo happened.

The Tiger clan is infected with the pennant bug. Every member of the team is already figuring on what he is going to do with his share of the world's series money. They don't concede any other team in the John Cobb's great playing is the main cause. The marvelous Tyrus has the pennant bug worse than any of his teammates and they have become infected with his enthusiasm. Ty is probably the greatest of them all. Alexander has remarkable ability. He does not labor in his pitching, and he knows as much about fooling batters as any twirler who ever stood on the mound. Alexander is one of the few pitchers who would change a loser into a winner by his acquisition, and there are few who have ability enough to be so considered.

"Wheeler" Dell of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who is making a remarkable name for himself by his effective pitching, owes the fact that he is a pitcher to a chance. In 1906 Dell was playing first base on a team in Butte, Mont., with Fred Van Nell, who is now a baseball writer in New York. Van Ness was the pitcher for the team. One day Fred was injured and there was no pitcher to succeed him. Van Ness suggested Dell, who refused at first, but finally went on the rubber and made such a good showing that he has been pitching ever since.

Buck Herzog can always be depended upon to put up a brilliantly dashing and aggressive game. One

WHITE, WHO MEETS WELSH JULY 5, HAS NEVER SHOWN CLASS IN A LONG BOUT

Challenger Charley White, who will meet Champion Freddie Welsh at Denver on July 5 in a twenty-round bout for the championship of the world, has never shown class in any bout of over fifteen rounds. Less than two years ago he was virtually compelled to take the count when he attempted to whip Jack Britton over the twenty-round course at New Orleans. White has figured in about eighty-five ring contests, but he has lasted out the long distance in only two bouts and rounded out only one fifteen-lap affair.

STREET LIGHTING.
After six months of earnest effort to interest the property owners and tenants of the downtown business district in the plan to establish ornamental street lighting and do away with the old fashioned and inadequate arc lights, the Commercial club has decided to make its appeal directly to the people of the city themselves and see if they are not enough interested in bringing Janesville to the front to aid in the work.

The plan is to secure the endorsement of the citizens generally to the plan of rearranging the lighting system of the city. To do away with the unsightly electric, telephone and telegraph poles in the downtown district, erect a handsome street lighting system that will be a pride of every citizen and throughout the various residential portions of the city, a light in every corner if possible. This is what the Commercial club has undertaken and it is worthy of careful consideration.

The cost would be a nominal one to each taxpayer. Not materially different from what he pays in taxes at the present time and the benefit to the city as a whole incalculable. The cost of the change would be spread over five years and the slight increase would not be perceptible. It would mean putting Janesville in the class of cities that are seeking to advance their general interests supported by the citizens as a whole. If other communities not half as prosperous as Janesville can do these things, why not Janesville?

The Commercial club is about to start a campaign to seek the endorsement of this plan from citizens generally. It means a general awakening of interests in the community you live in and each one can take their part in the work of boosting by signing their name to the petition to the mayor and councilmen that they are in favor of such a plan.

Mayor Fathers and the councilmen will favor such a plan if it is given the proper endorsement. They have the power to do it but they want the assurance of the citizens generally that it is what they desire. Think of the change in the business district with the unsightly and dangerous telephone and telegraph and electric wires and poles put out of sight? It would be an addition to the city as a whole from the start and it can not be successfully accomplished unless the present lighting system downtown is changed.

After installation the cost of maintenance will be the same as at present and the benefit derived can not be roughly estimated by the figures, that will be merely figures, that may be presented. It is a civic proposition and one which everyone should take their part.

Thus far the corn crop has not been materially benefited by the rain. If there are a few days and nights of warm weather and then a few showers all will be well. Twenty-five or six years ago some of the older farmers relate we had a similar month of June. The corn grew, but as one man expressed it, "We cultivated it with our overcoats and mittens on." Then came a warm spell and the crop that year was above the normal. Let us hope that this will be a repetition of history.

It would be hard to find a genuine democrat who grieves over the desertion of Bryan at this critical stage of democratic diplomatic history. The man who deserts the ship in mid-ocean is not half as much a political coward as the man who deserts a place of responsibility when his presence would aid materially in solving serious problems and when his desertion might be misconstrued by a foreign power.

Evidently the Janesville Commercial club does not mean to let the citizens forget that if Janesville is to be a well lighted city they must put their shoulder to the wheel and help the plans with this in view. It is a most commendable undertaking and it is to be hoped that the citizens generally will respond to the call for recruits.

Property-owners who have sidewalks that should be replaced should have enough civic pride not to wait for the city council to order them to rebuild them. There are enough "humpy-dumpy" circuits on some of the Janesville sidewalks that would put to shame a city that seeks recognition as a progressive community.

Governor Philipp is having a hard time of it at Madison with half the newspaper correspondents handling the big news of the session putting an erroneous construction on his efforts to give the state of Wisconsin a safe, sane and business administration.

Bryan's "swan song" has been elongated to such an extent that it has become a continuous performance. One of these "continued in our next" stories. Now he is going to write a history of the causes of the European war and the moral effect of it upon the world as a whole.

This war talk of three weeks ago has all died down and there is not even a murmur of possibility that we may have to declare war on anybody or anything except the files and mosquitoes this coming summer. In the meantime, however, we should prepare for any eventuality that might happen.

No one has had a real chance to enjoy the advantages offered the citizens of Janesville and the immediate vicinity to enjoy the Rock river with its wonderful winding course and beautiful scenery. However it may come later and soon Janesville will be listed as a summer resort.

Walking is good in Chicago. It costs a small fortune to ride, so the average business man walks to work. Meanwhile the auto owners and motor busses are reaping a rich harvest of coin from this strike.

The Wall Street Journal is one of the bitterest of the anti-German press in this country. It dares call a spade a spade and then argue why it should be so called.

It would appear that Greece is now ready to take its part in the fray. That is, if the recent election counts for anything in that kingdom.

ROMEO AND JULIET
MILTON CLASS PLAY

Production Proves Huge Success—Carroll West and Lloyd Hurley In Leading Roles.

Milton, June 16.—For twelve years at Milton College the students have presented at commencement one of Shakespeare's plays. Gradually the play has come to be the central event of the week and has attracted attention far and wide, so that from Madison and Milwaukee and many places between people who are aware of the excellent dramatic work of Milton students come to see the "Shakespearian play." During the last few years comedies have been chosen, but this year one of the strongest tragedies, most human in its interest, was given with such sustained power by critics who were present pronounced the performance far superior to amateur presentations and worthy of the professional stage.

All the characters were taken with appreciation and riving applause. A signal excellence of this performance was the fact that the chief characters sustained their impersonations throughout the entire play with never a slight lapse into self consciousness. This difficult task merits high praise. The light effects and scenery were specially simple and were very effective, managed entirely by the students themselves. Carroll B. West, as Mercutio, gave a very bright presentation of that entertaining character. Loyal F. Hurley grasped with a clear perception the benevolent character of Friar Lawrence and acted the part with sympathy and dignity. The two chief characters deserve all the praise that can be given for their acting. Kenneth B. Randolph, as Romeo, in every detail of preparation and natural feeling, Miss Bessie M. Buell of Janesville, made perfect Juliet. In the artless simplicity of her action as well as in the more tragic passages she carried her self with perfect naturalness. Both Mr. Randolph and Miss Buell won the commendation of the critics and the applause of the audience, which was perfectly carried away by the absolute naturalness of the parting scene, which was the most impressive part of the play. Miss Anna E. Post, as the old nurse, gave an inimitable presentation of that human and lovable character. She never lost herself and was a source of constant merriment to the audience. It is enough to say of the performance that even the difficult closing scene was very impressive and tragically realistic.

The music was very appropriate and was by a string trio under the direction of Mr. Elmer G. Place. It is to be hoped that Milton College will keep up this annual gift to the people, a worthy task by which Milton College is recognized already as unique.

Milton College Wins. Milton College won from Northwestern in a hard fought game yesterday by the score of 2 to 1. Lush, the Milton pitcher, was the hero of the diamond and threw an air tight game, allowing only five hits. Milton's catcher, Burdick, did some wonderful work behind the bat. This completes the Milton baseball schedule.

WILL SLAUGHTER BEEF TO BE USED IN PANAMA FOR LOWERING EXPENSES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Panama, June 16.—The beef consumed in the Panama Canal Zone is to be from cattle slaughtered here, instead of from the United States. It has been ascertained that a saving of from 10 to 20 per cent. can thus be effected. The canal supply department has already been killing local cattle, in order to test the quality of meat obtainable, and it has further arranged to purchase cattle in other parts of Central America and even South America, and bring them to the Isthmus for final fattening and slaughter.

A cattle buyer, assigned to visit the neighboring countries, will have his purchases brought to the Canal and inspected by a veterinary surgeon, to prevent the introduction of diseased cattle. The latter official is already on his way to the Isthmus.

SWEEPING CAMPAIGN STARTED ON FRIDAY

PETITIONS TO CHANGE LIGHTING SYSTEM AND REMOVE POLES FROM STREETS TO BE CIRCULATED.

MEANS MUCH FOR CITY

Commercial Club Behind Project Which Aims at Betterment of Entire City With Lights on Every Corner.

To the Honorable Mayor and Common Council of the City of Janeville:

We, the undersigned citizens and voters of the city of Janeville, do hereby petition the Mayor and Council of said city to inaugurate a lighting system providing for the installation of lights on approximately every corner of the now lighted residence district and ornamental lights in the business district.

This is the heading of the petition that will be started in circulation on Friday of this week by the members of the Commercial club who seek to bring about a decided change in the present lighting system of the city. It is a movement that means much to the citizens as a whole and the cost of making the proposed changes and the removal of the electric, telephone and telegraph poles from the downtown business district and residential with the results to be obtained that it should receive the ready support of the citizens generally.

Some time ago the agitation started to remove the unsightly poles and dangerous wires from the downtown business district. At the same time the Commercial club started a crusade to install ornamental street lights in place of the old fashioned gas becoming obsolete are lights, in the downtown district. The removal of the poles has hung fire for some time and the plan to install the ornamental lighting system has also been delayed. In order to bring the matter to a focus it has been decided to find the sentiment of the citizens of Janeville as a whole and hence the petition.

The cost of making the change is small and the cost will be spread on the assessment rolls over a period of five years, so that there would be no material increase in taxes. The new system when installed would cost no more than the present method of lighting the city and the result would be most surprising even to the most pessimistic. The installation of lights throughout the residence portions of the city would be a material gain. This has already been begun and demonstrates the possibility of what can be accomplished.

If it accomplished nothing else than the removal of the poles from the main streets it would be benefit enough to the city as a whole, but when the plan is to install a handsome and adequate lighting system downtown and through the city as a whole, then it will bring the support of citizens. This will bring the support of citizens. The club will be under the direction of Chairman Edward Mead, a member of the Commercial club's lighting committee, and at a final meeting Friday noon the city will be divided into districts and the whirlwind campaign for signatures will be started.

Mayor Fathers and the councilmen are anxious to do what is best for the interests of the city as a whole, and have asked for the signatures of the endorsement of the mayor of the club in this direction before making any radical change.

There were four girls clad in blue costumes, four in pink, four in green, two in red, two in green and two in yellow. Each shepherdess carried a shepherd's crook, the colors on these crooks corresponding with the costumes. Those who took part in this event are, Regina Brennan, Esther Dugan, Frances Hughes, Mamie Austin, Linda Aker, Ethel Clarida, Marjorie Cowder, Florence Douglas, Olive Fern, Clara Gesteland, Blanche Hykes, Myrtle Lane, Hazel Sennett, Marian Smith, Marian Ewing and Hazel Murray.

The Tilting of the Quintain was a comical feature of the afternoon, and added to the interest of the program. John Head, Charles Held and Harley Badger, all members and members of the Sportsmen band, furnished the excitement in this event. Tilting is a mediaeval military exercise in which the combatants on horseback attack each other with lances. Each tilter was supplied with a lance, and one wooden horse served the purpose for the three combatants. The idea was to make good use of the lance and at the same time the tilt or Quintain on its return. This was an amusing one and incited much laughter.

MAXFIELD IMPOSES REFORMATORY TERM ON WILCOX YOUTH

Young Man 21 Years of Age, Sentenced For One Year to Green Bay on Burglary Charge.

Leon Wilcox, aged 21 years, will spend the next twelve months in Green Bay Reformatory, this punishment being imposed by Judge Harry Stevens this morning when the youth pleaded guilty to the charge of burglary during the night time. Some days ago Wilcox was arrested Sheriff Chamberlain for the theft of thirty dollars at the Charles Yeoman farm.

The boy admitted the offense and the money was recovered by the county jail authorities to be returned to the rightfull owner. Wilcox came into court and readily admitted his guilt. His case was adjourned until today to allow the district attorney to make an investigation.

The investigation made in Bangor, Michigan, the home of the youth, showed the defendant had never been implicated in any unlawful offense or crime, and bore a good reputation in that city, and who know him in this country speak good of him. These facts were reported to the court by District Attorney Dunwidde. The youth was even so repentant for his offense that he offered to work for Charles Yeoman for a period of one year without compensation to repay for his offense—and the stolen money had been returned. The offense, he said, was committed while he was somewhat under the influence of liquor and was done because he wanted money to accomplish a purpose.

When arraigned for the sentence Wilcox had nothing to say as to his punishment and on the recommendation of District Attorney Dunwidde, the court sentenced him to the reformatory for one year, the term to begin today at noon. He will be taken to the institution tomorrow or Friday from the county jail.

As Wilcox was led from the courtroom, he held back the tears until outside, when confronted by his relatives. "I would have given five years of my life to escape this disgrace, for it was nothing but a foolish mistake," he said.

Jury Hears Testimony.

Testimony was taken in the municipal court today in the civil action case of the Levinson company against P. L. Myers, which is over damaged to the amount of $760 alleged to be due by the Levinson company for claimed interference of business at 114 East Milwaukee street, where Myers was served at 6:30 o'clock, coming in for a trial at 2:30 o'clock.

When and Mrs. Frank Farnsworth of Court street will give a dinner this evening at the Country club. Covers will be laid for sixteen.

A. E. Hilton spent today at Oxford.

A. E. Matheson transacted business this morning at Edgerton.

Roy Eller left today for Milwaukee where he will spend his summer vacation.

Mrs. J. F. Pember, son Aubrey and friend left this morning for a short vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Bridges, 609 Milwaukee avenue, are the guests of the Myers block at the K. C. C. rooms.

A. J. of six men, Fred Bencic, J. M. Thayer, A. W. Hall, Samuel Lock, George Butts and Robert Clark, is hearing the evidence. Attorneys M. F. Richardson for the plaintiff and George Sutherland for the defendant are conducting the case.

FAIL TO FIND FIFTH TEAM TO FILL OUT IN COMMERCIAL LEAGUE

There will be no fifth team in the Janeville Commercial League for at least another week. This was the decision reached last night at the meeting of the managers and captains of the four teams in the league.

The management has decided to wait another week for the telephone companies to decide whether or not they will be able to get a nine together.

If they are unable to fill the vacancy, clubs will be open for any commercial team in the city to place an application for entrance.

It is understood that the Bell Telephone company employees will be eager to form a team and the option now rests with the Rock County company as to whether or not they will be able to let the men off to play the scheduled games. The Bell company can furnish from five to seven men and the balance will be up to the other events.

May Pole Dance.

The May Pole dance concluded the great pageant spectacle. Fourteen senior girls and boys took part in the winding and unwinding of the pole.

The event differed somewhat from past May Pole dances, inasmuch as the dancers were made up both of boys and girls. Only girls had participated in this event in past years.

The following took part: Eulalia Drew, Mary Cronin, Katherine Sheridan, Madeline Clark, Frances McGregor, Lucille Fletcher, Sheldon, Alan Dearborn, Harry Fuchs, Morris Thayer, Willard Bennett, Joseph Franklin and Edward Schenck.

READING LIFE STORIES.
—Pater.
"What a story that woman's life would make," a woman said to me the other day. "How I wish I could write it!"

"It would be wonderful to be able to do that," I admitted; "but since you can't, aren't you glad you can read it? That's more than many people can do."

Read it!

Drama and Romance in Every-day Life.

"Yes, see that it is a story, and I appreciate the drama and romance in it."

"Yes," she answered thoughtfully, "I suppose that is something to be thankful for, although I don't know that I ever realized it. I was always so impulsive because I wanted to write the stories I saw, and couldn't."

The desire to create is a primitive human instinct.

It is so strong within us that we often forget that receptivity and appreciation of art and creation are important functions of life.

It is a very wonderful gift to be able to tell some of the many stories that go on about us. It is no despotic gift to be able to see these stories. Not everyone has the seeing eye. Many people go through life never seeing the romance, the drama and the inspiration in the lives of those about them. It is something to be thankful for that you have this faculty, even if you have not the further creative faculty to "impart the gift of seeing to the rest."

People Who Can Appreciate Much Needed

The world needs those who can understand and appreciate as well as those who can create. To be able to understand and love good music is a gift as well as to be able to produce it.

In college we had a music course in which we were not taught to make music or anything about the theory of harmony, simply to appreciate good music when we heard it. The course was called "music appreciation."

Singers speak of the help an audience can be. That means that the passive force of appreciation and understanding in a receptive audience is a complement that rounds out the creative force of the artists to full perfection. Carlyle, I believe it is, says that anyone who reads a poem well is himself a poet. He appreciates, and in so doing becomes a kind of co-creator.

"Culture makes a man to be something, it does not teach him to create anything" is a dictum we could well remember when we resent our own inactivity to be among the creators. True culture is something worth having. The world needs men and women who are, as well as those who do.

Questions and Answers.

Question.—Should I speak of the man to whom I am engaged as fiance or fiancee?—Letter Friend.

Reply.—If you have a dictionary you needn't have wasted a stamp, but I am happy to supply the information. The word is from the French and retains the two gender forms. Fiance is masculine, fiancee feminine.

Glimpses of Married Life
By MRS. EVA LEONARD

"Dick, I want you to read Olive's story," said Nell as they rose from the table. "I feel greatly encouraged over the success of my plan. See what you think. I'll put the baby to bed now."

Dick lit a cigar and stretching himself out in the morris chair, opened the letter and read:

"Dear Nell: I suppose you are holding your breath to know about my visit to Ann Arbor. The boys turned the frat house over to the girls and got rooms outside. It was a lovely time, but though it all I had a haunting sense of the transitoriness of all things in general and of this friend in particular.

"Mr. Joplin is a mere cub. He says the family record shows him to be twenty-three, as old as I am, but he has never had a responsibility in life and is incredibly young. One of the indications is that he shows signs of losing his head over me. I always maintained that a girl need never have a proposal if she did not want it, so I have commenced to throw up breastworks behind which to retire.

"I read somewhere that no proper constituted man ever saw a stone wall but he was fired with a desire to climb it, and it is proving true in this case."

"Mother has taken a great liking to the boy and is forever discussing to me on his merits and my lack of proper appreciation. He is just what she would choose for a son."

"What have you against him?" she asks. "He certainly takes infinite pains to please you." And when I reply, "A man might take too much pains," I call down platiitudes on my head. Finally I said, "He is too young." She finished her discourse with, "Why, Olive, he is as old as you are. If you married him you could develop him along the lines of your interests."

That's just the trouble. I don't care to model in wax. If I ever married it will be to a man, developing a boy is a mother's province, not a wife's. I wanted to say that to mother, but refrained. Then why will women remain blind to the fact that open urging is a damper to love, and surely as opposition served only to fan its flames?

"I am afraid for the love will never exist. I said as much to Daddy the other day in one of our walks. He looked at me sharply for a moment, then said:

"It is this the penalty for the hardened common sense I have developed in you since babyhood?" Then after a pause he added: "There are worse fates than not marrying, and one of them is marrying without love. Don't make that mistake. Perhaps yours is a capacity for wide friendship. That is a great gift he concluded."

"I think Daddy is right. I have become friends with a fine, strong man and every fellow youth palls on me by comparison. Why am I so old for twenty-three unless this wonderful companionship made me old? Really, I am quite a problem. Don't you think so?"

"I'll not afflict you with any more of my puzzle today. Very soon you will be here, and then we can talk the thing out. Lovingly,

"OLIVE." Dick sat peacefully smoking when Nell came in a little later.

"You're a clever schemer. Now all you have to do is to keep absolutely mum. The doctor is only thirty, but he is mature. Life has been a series of hard knocks for him and the world of his would have been a knock-down blow to most men, but he holds his head up gallantly after the 'bludges of fate' have done their worst."

"We live in deeds, not years," said Nell softly.

Then they have only the sweet, natural, delicate, fresh egg taste, the same as when boiled or poached; they are as good to look at as to eat—no burnt edges or black specks; and they are easier than ever to digest. Use Crisco the next time you fry eggs, and you will be so agreeably surprised that you will be eager to try it for other foods.

No matter where else you use it, you will secure remarkable results, for Crisco embodies all the qualities which a cooking product should have to be equally satisfactory for frying, for shortening, and for cake and bread making.

Crisco is purely vegetable, absolutely clean in origin and manufacture. It stands a very high temperature without burning. It is sweet, delicate, delicious and wholesome.

It is for these reasons that you can use it for frying doughnuts, croquettes, etc., for shortening pastry and for making cake, and secure as remarkable results as when frying eggs.

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May Be Addressed To Mrs. Thompson, In Care of The Gazette, Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young man twenty years old. I have been going with a young lady for the past four years who resides in a neighboring town. Several weeks ago the company did not seem to interest her and later she refused my company entirely. Since then every effort I have made to win back her affections has been a failure. I am a young contractor and able to give a good home, what would you advise me to do to win her affections?

HOP. Pay no more attention to the girl than to recognize her when you meet her. If she does not make her want to see you again, I am afraid your case is hopeless. After three or four months ask her if you may call, and if she will not let you, then you may as well give her up. There is nothing so dead as dead love.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: You please inform me what to do in case I am out walking with a man and meet some of my friends and they want to tell me something. Is it wrong to go and speak to them and leave the young man standing alone, if I come back to him?

(2) I met a young man some time ago and liked him, but he wanted me to kiss him and I refused. Since then he has not gone with me. Do you think he cared for me?

(3) I broke my nose sometime ago letter better.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been going with a girl until a few days ago when we had a little quarrel. Since then she has been writing secret letters to me and I have answered them. She has been keeping company with another young man. She goes with him, yet don't seem to care much for him. Please tell me how I can find out whom she likes best.

JACK. I can't see why you should write secret letters after you have quarreled. Imagine that she is very fond of you or she wouldn't bother to correspond. If you intend to marry her, ask her the state of her affections. But unless you do intend to marry her, you will have to remain uncertain as to whom she likes best.

"Hair of the Dog." When a man is debilitated from the effects of the previous night's debauch he is frequently counseled to take "a hair of the dog that bit him," the meaning being that he should take a little of the same kind of liquor that had upset him. The saying is a remnant of an old superstitious belief that the burnt hair of a dog was an antidote against the ill effects of intoxication.

POPULATION INCREASING
FASTER THAN FOOD SUPPLY,
SAYS PROFESSOR

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, June 16.—There is grave danger that a famine will descend upon the United States some time in the near future, according to Professor John M. Coulter, head of the Department of Botany of Chicago University. Population here, said the Professor, is increasing twenty times faster than the food supply.

"We ought to have enough food-stuffs for this country to feed the world," said Prof. Coulter. "Instead, we soon shall not have enough to feed ourselves. This growing discrepancy between food production and population is the basis of the high cost of living."

"Four remedies present themselves to prevent famine in the United States. First, we should develop scientific methods of soil cultivation. We must manipulate the soil properly, and farm intensively, as the Europeans do. By scientific treatment of the soil crops can be increased 300 per cent. in the United States.

"Second, we must plant on every edly of other things.

This occurred in the forenoon of a pleasant day in May. In the afternoon of the same day Miss Grierson's trap was baited before the door of the temporary quarters of the Wahaska public library. Raymer saw the trap and crossed the street, remembering what he would otherwise have forgotten—that his sister had asked him to get book on orchids.

Miss Margery was in the reference room, wading absentmindedly through the newspaper files. She nodded brightly when Raymer entered—and was not in the least disblinded by the library card in his hand.

"You are just in time to help me," she told him. "Do you remember the story of that daring bank robbery in New Orleans a few weeks ago?—the one in which a man made the president draw a check and get it cashed for him?"

Raymer did remember it, chiefly because he had talked about it at the time with Jasper Grierson, and had wondered curiously how the president of the Farmers' and Merchants' would deport himself under like conditions.

"If you should meet the man face to face, would you recognise him from the description?" she flashed up at Raymer.

"Not in a thousand years," he confessed. "Would you?"

"No; not from the description," she admitted. Then she passed to a matter apparently quite irrelevant.

" Didn't I see Miss Farnham's return noticed in the Wahaska the other day?"

With Charlotte's father a daily visitor at Wahaska, it seemed incredible that Miss Grierson had not heard of the daughter's homecoming. But Raymer answered in good faith.

"They came up as far as St. Louis on one of the Anchor line—the Belle Jucie—and even Miss Gilman admits that the accommodations were excellent."

She nodded absently and began to turn the leaves of the newspaper file. Raymer took it as his dismissal and went to the desk to get the orchid book. When he looked in again on his way to the street, Miss Grierson had gone, leaving the file of the Pioneer Press open on the reading desk. Almost involuntarily he glanced at the first-page headings, thrilling to a little shock of surprise when one of them proved to be the caption of another Associated Press dispatch giving a 20-line story of the capture and second escape of the Bayou State Security robber on the levers at St. Louis.

The reading of the bit of stale news impressed him curiously. Why had Miss Margery interested herself in the details of the New Orleans bank robbery? Why—with no apparent special reason—should she have remembered it at all—or, remembering it, have known where to look for the two newspaper references?

Raymer left the library speculating vaguely on the unaccountable tangents at which the feminine mind could now and then fly off from the well-defined circle of the conventionally usual. On rare occasions his mother or Gertrude did it, and he had long since learned the folly of trying to reduce the small problem to terms of known quantities masculine.

"Just the same, I'd like to know why, this time," he said to himself, as he crossed the street to the Manufacturers' club. "Miss Grierson isn't at all the person to do things without an object."

CHAPTER XIII.

The Convalescent.

After a few more days in the Morris chair—days during which he was idly contented when Margery was with him, and vaguely dissatisfied when she was not—Griswold was permitted to go below stairs, where he met, for the first time since the Grierson roof had given him shelter, the master of Wahaska.

The little visit to Jasper Grierson's library was not prolonged beyond the invalid's strength; but notwithstanding its brevity there were inert currents of antagonism evolved which Margery, present and endeavoring to serve as a lightning arrester, could neither ground nor turn aside.

Griswold took away from the rather constrained ice-breaking in the banker's library a renewed resolve to cut his obligation to Jasper Grierson as short as possible. How he should begin again the mortdant struggle for existence was still an unsolved problem. Of the one-thousand-dollar spending fund there remained something less than half; for a few weeks or months he could live and pay his way; but after that . . . Curiously enough the alternative of another attack upon the plutocratic dragon did not suggest itself. That he told himself, was an experiment tried and found wanting. But in any event, he

"Oh," said the small fitter of deduction pegs; and afterward she talked, and made the convalescent talk, point that the charm was at least partly physical, its appeal was none the less irresistible.

"Are you dreadfully tired?" she asked, adding quickly: "You mustn't let us make a martyr of you. It's your privilege to disappear whenever you feel like it."

"Indeed, I'm not at all tired," he protested. "It is all very comforting and homelike; so vastly"—he hesitated, seeking thoughtfully for the word which should convey his meaning without laying him open to the charge of patronizing superciliousness, and she supplied it promptly.

"So different from what you were expecting; I know. You have been thinking of us as barbarians—outer barbarians, perhaps—and you find that we are only harmless provincials. But really, you know, we are improving. I wish you could have known Wahaska as it used to be."

"It is all very grateful and delightful to me," he confessed, at length. "And so shall I," she gibed—but the gibe itself was almost a caress. "Sometimes you remind me of an impatient boy who has been promised a peach and can't wait until it ripens. But if you must have a reason why I won't drive you this afternoon, you may. We are going to have a tiny little social function at Wahaska this evening, and I want you to be fresh and rested for it."

"Certainly, I shall come, if you wish it," he asserted, remembering afresh his immense obligation; and when the time was ripe he made himself presentable and felt his way down the dimly lighted library stair, being minded to slip into the social pool by the route which promised the smallest splash and the fewest ripples.

"I know," she assented, with quick appreciation. "An author has to be both, hasn't he?—keen to enjoy, and well hardened to endure."

He turned upon her squarely.

"Where did you ever learn how to say such things as that?" he demanded.

"It was an opening for mockery and good-natured railing, but she did not make use of it. Instead, she let him look as deeply as he pleased into the velvety eyes when she said: "It is given to some of us to see and to understand where others have to learn slowly, letter by letter. Surely, your own gift has told you that, Mr. Griswold?"

"It has," he acknowledged. "But I have found few who really do understand."

Thin Folks Who Would Be Fat

Increase in Weight Ten Pounds or More.

A Physician's Advice

"I'd certainly give most anything to be able to fat up a few pounds and stay that way," declares every excessively thin man or woman. Such a result is not impossible, despite past failures. Thin people are victims of mal-nutrition, a condition which prevents fatty elements of food from being taken up by the blood as they are when the powers of nutrition are normal. Instead of getting into the blood all the fat and flesh producing elements stay in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste.

To correct this condition and to produce a healthy normal amount of fat the nutritive processes must be artificially supplied with the power which nature has denied them. This can best be accomplished by eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is a scientific combination of six of the best strengthening fat-producing elements known to the medical profession. Taken with meals, it mixes with the food and turns the sugars and starches into rich, ripe nourishment for the tissues and blood and its rapid effect is remarkable. Reported gains of from ten to twenty-five pounds in a single month are by no means infrequent. Yet its action is perfectly natural and absolutely harmless. Sargol is sold by good druggists everywhere and every package contains a guarantee of weight increase or money back.

Caution:—While Sargol has produced remarkable results in the treatment of nervous indigestion and general stomach disorders, it should not, owing to its remarkable flesh producing effect, be used by those who are not willing to increase their weight ten pounds or more. Advertisement Merwin felt a curious elation upon him, a sudden lightness of heart, one of those miraculous sensations of utter delight that come at the most unexpected moments when one is performing one's work a little better than ever it has been performed before.

Arrogant with the delightful arrogance of the artist who has worked hard for achievement his eyes sought all the fat and flesh producing elements stay in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste.

Clear, ringing, sweet-toned as any bell, holding the audience spellbound, with eyes aglow the voice of Merwin rang out. And then the song died in mid-air, seemed to halt upon its course. The singer's hand clutched at his throat, clutched desperately there as though by sheer brute strength he would force out the sounds that the vocal chords refused to give. His lips opened and closed, closed and opened. A mute he stood there, a ludicrous mute, sawing the air with his hands, desperately, wildly—

A laugh hurtled from the gallery, the laugh that was sufficient to guide the mob. It grew in volume, grew so that its sound penetrated the heavy curtain as it slowly descended upon a wild-eyed, sobbing tenor, who stared piteously at the back of a laughing woman in the box at the head of the diamond horseshoe.

With the ready effervescent sympathy of the Romance people the director pillow'd the head of his great "find" upon his shoulder. But over that head his eyes sought these of Doctor Holbrook, the world's renowned throat specialist, who had been treating Merwin now for months. And a hard expression, a look of flint was in the director's eyes as the specialist shook his head to indicate the death of another voice.

"It is the fault of the atmosphere, the early training," coolly declared the impresario later that evening to the reporters. "Now, Merwin, with the proper, early training would have proved the greatest tenor of our time." He shrugged a bit contemptuously. "You call it here, I believe, a flash in the pan."

VIII.
Ann Merwin's hands still gripped tightly the newspaper with which she had fed from her attorney's office, the newspaper whose startling head had caught her eye even as her hand re-

And now she was late. He looked at his watch nervously, then whirled to the stairs and tapped upon her door.

"I forgot again, Henry," she replied, before he had a chance to say a word. "Please forgive me, but—I don't think I help you with these people."

"You make no effort to improve yourself. You are constantly doing everything to annoy me. You are ruining my voice, clouding my whole career."

"And you don't try to do better. You don't care for anything but the vile little holes in Los Angeles. You want me to be ruined. You want me to lose my voice. You know you do—you want a milkman because you are nothing and never will be anything but fit for a milkman's wife."

"But what can I do, Henry? What do you want me to do?"

"Do?" He laughed, laughed in her face. "Why, get a divorce, of course. I'm through. Get it before I'm completely ruined. I'll give you the divorce—there'll be no trouble about that—and fifty thousand dollars."

She regarded him steadily, searching.

"No, there'll be no trouble—about that," she repeated after him, as he slammed the door. "No trouble, Henry."

believed the final decree of divorce. There was a wild expression in her eyes as she lunged through the crowded traffic of the streets toward the city hospital where the story said Henry had been taken.

Forgotten the document in her handbag, forgotten the bitterness with which he had treated her. She only remembered that he was the father of her child, that he was the man she had loved—the man she loved still.

Voiceless, forgotten by friends, an object of pity and contempt, a vagrant succumbing to exposure at the dark waterside where he might have contemplated making his final resting place—he was still her husband just as he always had been.

She did not heed the curious glances of the nurses nor the internees as she demanded admittance to his bedside. That the story of the celebrity's downfall, the divorce and attendant scandal belonged to the world meant nothing to her. A queen—she demanded the right to be with her husband in his hour of need.

She did not shrink away from the poor creatures upon the cots in the wards through which they passed. The flotsam and jetsam of a great city was there, but that mattered nothing to her. That her husband was just such another dependent upon a city's charity meant nothing to her.

She felt a little pain in her heart as the interne paused beside a snowy cot, hesitated a second before approaching the delirious man, tossing and tumbling upon the cot, then bravely moved forward again. The interne rested his hand upon her arm. She looked into his face with surprise and saw nothing but sympathy there and desire to avoid harm coming to her. She brushed him aside and then a voice reached out to her, a voice wild and hoarse, throbbing with the insanity of delirium yet with the longing of a world in it, a voice she would have known from all the voices of the world.

"Olga—Olga—Olga—"

On and on and on, interminably, and always with that same pitiful appeal, that same throbbing note of heart-rending helplessness, cried the voice; the voice of Henry Merwin, her husband toward the woman, the laughing woman's back, the Olga Drake who sat in the head box of the diamond horseshoe.

She held her head proudly, defiantly as the superintendent of the hospital tried to suppress the pity in his look with which he accepted the money she had placed upon his desk, when she fled from that ward, fed from that voice.

"When he is well," she said quietly, "give him this money. Say it is from a friend."

"But—"

"From—a friend," she repeated softly, a faint smile upon her lips.

The rose suddenly for the scent of roses was in her nostrils, the vision of far-fung hills in her eyes, with tiny white cottage nestling at the foot of them.

"Perhaps he may go back," she murmured to herself, as she left the place. "Perhaps he may go back—home—and be glad—glad the home didn't go when everything else was paid—paid. Who Pays?"

END OF THE FIRST STORY.

The next story, "The Pursuit of Pleasure."

THE POWER OF TOXINS.

One thousandth of a gram of tetanus (lockjaw) toxin is enough to kill a horse weighing 1,300 pounds or six hundred million times its weight. More remarkable still, one-thousandth of a milligram of tubercular toxin will produce action on a man weighing 132 pounds—sixty trillion times its weight.

NON-SMOKERS LEAGUE'S STAND AGAINST THE WEED

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

San Francisco, June 16.—That every man, woman and child has the right to breathe fresh, pure ozone and should not be compelled to inhale the second hand, stifling fumes of the pipe, cigar and cigarette fiend, was the keynote of the convention of the Non-Smokers Protective League now holding its convention at the Civic Auditorium.

The delegates declare the "fiends" violate the guarantees given to all by the Declaration of Independence and that the contamination of the air by fumes is entirely illegal. Their aim is to secure the enactment of laws whereby no one will be required to inhale tobacco fumes in hotel lobbies, street cars, telephone booths or any other private or public places.

SNAP SHOTS

If you are of frail physique, have a weak stomach and a tendency toward rheumatism and other serious ailments, the probabilities are that you will live a long time and die at an advanced age.

It is possible for a woman to bury her past, but some other woman always marks the grave.

A woman is very apt to overestimate the good time her husband has when he is away from home.

There is some consolation in the thought that the graduating oration never is as painful to the audience as it is to the young man who delivers it.

Dad Hewlett says he easily could have shot the burglar who, the other night, ransacked the Hewlett house. Dad says the reason he didn't was that he was afraid of waking the baby.

A mother's fervent hope is that her daughters, when they marry, will do better than she did.

The theory that girls occasionally marry men they dislike in order to please their parents also is a fallacious one.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

The Story of "Bartered Lives." Hesperi, an artist's model, and her twin sister, Pierrette, a singer, so closely resemble each other that they cannot be told apart, even by their most intimate friends, and are able to impersonate each other at will. One morning Hesperi awakens with a bad headache, and having an engagement to pose for a young painter that day, asks her sister to take her place. Pierrette consents, and at the artist's studio meets a millionaire through whose influence with the managers she obtains a position upon the stage. She soon becomes a famous opera singer and sometime later goes abroad, leaving her sister, Hesperi, at home alone.

Pierrette, carried away by her love for money, becomes engaged to a wealthy banker whom she does not love and whom she does not scruple to deceive. He soon learns that her love for him is only feigned and in desperation attempts suicide. He succeeds only in severely wounding himself, but his method of attempting his own life is such as to point to attempt at murder, and he allows it to be thought that he was attacked by someone else, hoping to obtain re-venge upon Pierrette by having her accused of the crime.

While the banker is in the hospital, Pierrette, panic-stricken, flees the country, but not before writing to her sister, Hesperi, telling her that she is going away and that she wants to come and live in her mansion during her absence. Hesperi arrives, and being mistaken by some of Pierrette's friends for the singer herself, decides to keep up the deception in order to enjoy the luxuries that go with the life of a popular prima donna. She even signs a contract to sing in a new opera and in the actual presentation of the piece scores a great success.

The banker, now fully recovered, visits Hesperi and, never suspecting that she is not Pierrette, again presses his suit with ardor. When the girl refuses to have anything to do with him, he again plans revenge and uses the incident of the shooting to have her indicted for attempt at murder.

The German Society are enjoying a picnic at Shoemakers' Woods today. The Edgerton Court band is furnishing the music.

Dinner Stories

Two New Yorkers of some experience in travel other than by rapid transit lines of the metropolis were telling hard-luck stories. "About the worst I ever got up against," said one, "was buying from a Connecticut Yankee what was represented to be a pullet, and, by gravy! it turned out to be a hen so old she couldn't lay free eggs." "Hard lines, hard lines!" sighed the other, who had a red nose. "But think of me being marooned for a whole month in Kansas town which was so totally temperance that even the cows had gone dry at the last election!"

An elderly millionaire had married a beautiful young chorus girl. After their quiet wedding they had a sumptuous wedding breakfast a deux—Astrakan caviare, eggs pompadour, a truffled chicken, fresh peas, champagne—so the quiet breakfast ran. "My dear," said the old millionaire, as the fruit course, superb melon, was served, "tell me, my dear—see he laid his withered hand on her young, fresh one—"do you love me for who I am, or for what I was?" The beautiful girl smiled down from the window into the admiring eyes of a young clubman who was passing; then she bent her clear, considering gaze on the gray ruin opposite her, and replied: "I love you, George, for what you will be."

At Christmas the children of a certain provincial school tried to collect money by singing carols and snatches of hymns. Many complaints had reached the rector's ears of bands of youngsters scampering through the first verse of "While Shepherds Watched," and then violently ringing the doorbell. So he instituted inquiries on the next occasion. He visited the school. "Why is it," he asked, "that instead of singing the hymn in a reverent way, you scamper through the verse and then ring the bell?" Silence reigned for a short time. Then a shrill voice from a small boy at the back of the room was heard in explanation: "Please, sir, it's cause they always lets the dog loose at the second verse."

HARDWARE

Hardware, June 14.—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fiehart spent Sunday with friends in Edgerton.

Joseph Bowen and Lorraine Conway of Edgerton spent Sunday at James Burns'.

Mabel Quam is spending this week at the home of her brother Eric, in Albion Prairie.

The Hardware team defeated the Edgerton Cubs at Schmeling's Park Sunday. Hermanson was at his best and held the hard hitting Cubs without a score until the ninth inning, when they rallied and ran in two scores, making the game 8 to 2 in favor of Hardware.

Fred Wachlin is recovering from an attack of the mumps.

How Advertising Brought Success To Haberdasher

Fred L. Rosbach, Chicago's Furnisher to His Majesty, the American Citizen Wins Quick Success by Daring Newspaper Advertising.

STARTED AS NEWSBOY.

Invested $2,000 First Year in Advertising, Bringing Back $50,000 in Sales — Now Appropriates $20,000 a Year for Business Insurance.

mind to be lavish with his energies and working hours till the business can stand on its own feet.

"When I was twenty-three, I supplemented my savings by forming a partnership with a man who had offered to help me when I should be ready to make my own venture—and opened the little store over on Washington street.

"My capital was $2500, and my first year's investment, all told in advertising was $2,000. I was proud ever since to think I knew enough to start right—for my first year of business was $50,000—as compared with a probable $50,000 cents, as a youngster's first year in an unadvertised Chicagoans that they know a sale here means a bonafide opportunity to save money. The very fact that we've been spending $20,000 a year in advertising for the past fifteen years, in good times and bad times—and they see no shrinkage in our advertising space—demonstrates the psychological effect of advertising—and the evidence that we're prospering in all times—and prosperity indicates to the thinking buyer that satisfaction is to be had here."

"For continual prosperity depends on making every customer a satisfied come-back, or repeater—after the newspaper has brought them to the store."

Can't Make Hay on Borrowed Sunshine.

"I'm just reminded of a firm I worked for back in the early nineties," he went on, as the reminiscent smile broke through again, and he leaned back in his chair. "They selected a fine location on State street, and announced their opening in a page of the paper. 'Then they rocked back on their heels and said—

"There, we're through. We've told people we're here—all those other fellows on State street advertise every day and bring people down here—then they'll remember us, and in they come. Simplest thing in the world."

"Then the other fellows advertise, and we make hay on their sunshine."

"They were right about one thing—that we're through. We didn't long till Chicago had forgotten they'd ever had a store on State street."

Rosbach's Recipe for Success.

"It seems to me," I ventured, as I picked up my hat and gloves to leave, "that you would give your advice to the new man in this line in almost one word."

"One big word and several small ones," he smiled. "We pronounce advertising done here in capitals—the other word are the ones every man with the experience needed to start a business of this kind knows—honesty, reliability, care in selecting stock and keeping it fresh, originality, and convenience of location, and so forth.

"But men have to dress in conservatively selected good lines and stuck to them. Our prices have all been neither the highest nor the lowest—we've been satisfied with modest profits on these good lines—profits are necessarily small on this stock of buyers that strengthen the store, I thought to myself."

"Well, for a hobby, it looks to me like a business caller here Thursday."

Mr. Rosbach selected just about lars. One of my first rules for my clerks was 'don't push a sale; give your customer what he wants.'

"But these are the things the furnisher man has to do—they're all doing them as nearly as they can."

Prestige Retailer's Greatest Asset.

"But what earthly good is it going to do us if we don't tell people about it? I sold nearly 5,000 knitted ties in one day, brought nearly 5,000 probable buyers of additional articles into my stores. Why? Because of the prestige these stores have gained from the pages of the newspaper. Because I have kept the business and what they stand for as conspicuously and constantly before newspaper-readers

CARRIE JACOBS BOND IS HONORED AT EXPO

Noted Composer, a Former Janeville Woman, Is Feted at San Diego Fair.

Tuesday, June 1, was Carrie Jacobs Bond day at the Panama-Pacific exposition at San Diego. The noted composer, who for many years resided in Janeville, and who has a large circle of friends here, was honored with receptions and recitals, and one of the largest crowds of the exposition thus far was present to join in the special festivities.

"In honor of the composer," says the San Diego Union, "Mrs. L. J. Selby of Los Angeles, a close friend of Mrs. Bond, sang 'My Soul and One Hundred Years From Now,' both by Mrs. Bond. Dr. Humphrey J. Stewart, official organist, played the accompaniments on the Spreckels outdoor organ.

Early in the afternoon the composer and Mrs. Selby were guests of honor at a reception given at the Seven Southern California Counties building. After the concert they were then guests at a tea given in the women's headquarters of the California building by members of the women's board.

"A program of Spanish songs and Spanish dances was given at the Sacramento building by the exposition performers. This part of the entertainment was arranged especially for Mrs. Bond, and she seemed to enjoy it. Because music is the audience desired to see Mrs. Bond she appeared on the platform at the organ and was introduced to the audience by Dr. Edgar L. Hewett.

"At the reception given at the California building Mrs. Bond sang 'A Perfect Day' and as an encore, 'Do You Remember,' a new song which was composed by Mrs. Bond since her arrival in San Diego.

as means of crushing the insects, and also as means of exposing them to the rays of the sun and to the choking action of the dust. The Bureau of Entomology has proved that neither the mechanical crushing nor the direct rays of the sun contribute much to the effectiveness of the dust treatment, and that most of the insects die long before they're smothered by the dust. The residual factor in killing the weevil is the heat absorbed by the soil from the sun's rays.

To kill the weevil the surface of the field to be treated must be dry free from clods, cracks and vegetation. To get best results, however, the sky must be clear and the day warm. Under these conditions when the soil reaches the necessary temperature of 120 degrees, all stages of the insect are killed in less than two minutes. The second crop of alfalfa is then free to grow. The effective

SIX LEGGED WEEVIL THREATENS ALFALFA

Pest Moving Eastward From Mountain States. Does Severe Damage to the Crop.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, June 16.—There is now a six-legged weevil threatening alfalfa in the intermountain state of the west. Introduced at a single spot near Salt Lake City ten years ago, it has slowly spread, throughout the northern half of Utah, including three of the most productive counties and has taken a foothold in Idaho and Wyoming near the Utah line.

The weevil is spending the winter in the hills above the roots of the plants, deposit large numbers of pale yellow eggs in cavities made in the stems with their beaks. The little green "worms" which hatch from these during spring and early summer, cluster upon the fresh shoots of alfalfa and feed, becoming most numerous about June 1. They destroy much of the first crop, injure the quality of what remains and compel early cutting to prevent total loss.

The actual damage to the first crop is not far from 50 per cent of its value. Upon the cutting of the first crop, the larvae gather upon the bits of food which is afforded by the fresh shoots and destroy them as fast as they appear. This condition lasts until the normal harvest time of the second crop, so that it is a total loss.

The damage to the first two crops usually amounts to about one-half the annual value.

A valuable method for preventing the injury to the second crop is by dragging the stubble after removal of the first cutting. This was devised by the Utah Experiment Station in co-operation with the farmers. It was improved afterward, in actual operation, by the adoption of a weishiip spike-toothed harrow with several layers of woven wire stock fencing underneath instead of the old-fashioned brush drag.

The treatment was widely adopted as means of crushing the insects, and also as means of exposing them to the rays of the sun and to the choking action of the dust. The Bureau of Entomology has proved that neither the mechanical crushing nor the direct rays of the sun contribute much to the effectiveness of the dust treatment, and that most of the insects die long before they're smothered by the dust. Under these conditions when the soil reaches the necessary temperature of 120 degrees, all stages of the insect are killed in less than two minutes. The second crop of alfalfa is then free to grow. The effective ness of this treatment, however, is directly proportional to the thoroughness with which the above conditions are complied with. If the soil is not in good condition, it must be plowed before dragging. The great objection to this method of fighting the cultivation of the alfalfa field at the beginning of the haying season.
